SUPERMODEL HEIDI KLUM
TALKS SHOP WITH HER
PAL GWEN STEFANI

HEIDI KLUM: Gwen, we've known each other a long time—way before all the kids' birthday parties—and you've always inspired me because you're unique. When someone says a "Gwen Stefani" look, everyone knows what that means.

GWEN STEFANI: Aw! Well, you make anything look good.

HK: I've been on the "Don't" pages a lot. You never have.

GS: Oh, I have so many times. But back in the day, when they started doing Fashion Police, I thought it was actually cool if you made it on there. It meant that you were taking a risk.

HK: You're gutsier than I am. And I'm pretty gutsy.

GS: Fashion is about expressing yourself. No rules. If I like something, I don't really care if someone else doesn't.

HK: Agreed. So, how would you describe your style right now?

GS: More feminine than ever before. It's probably because I'm super in love and have a really manly man [Blake Shelton]. I enjoy letting that part of me come out now because when I was in No Doubt, I never thought of myself as sexy. Even in my 30s, I was a tomboy. I hardly ever carried a purse.

HK: You always had a little of that Hollywood glam, no?

GS: I've spent a lot of time watching old movies on Turner Classic [laughs]. Then when I got out of high school, there was this rockabilly-meets-'50s pinup girl moment happening in Orange County. It was very cartoonish. I'd go to thrift stores to try to find pieces that no one else would have.

HK: I did that too. Vintage is best when you want something great that doesn't cost a lot. I admire your commitment to style. Even when you're running to the store, you look cool.

GS: I like to get ready to go out more than I like to actually go out. Even if no one sees me, I get up every day and put on makeup and an outfit that suits my mood.

HK: Your red lips are iconic. When you don't wear a lip, I think, "Is that Gwen?" I'm the opposite: When I'm off, I'm in jeans and sunglasses, with my hair in a bun.

GS: It's harder with kids, but I can get ready fast. That came from years of living on a tour bus with only guys.
