

Hot GLASSES

Gwen Stefani must be up at 4 in the Morning with all she has going on! The singer-designer-TV personality launched two lines of glasses: gx by Gwen Stefani (shown on her, above) and L.A.M.B. Seen here in a pic from the campaign, the singer said, "To have the opportunity to design all of my dream glasses is mind-blowing.... They're absolutely incredible." Both brands include opticals and sunnies in the rocker's standout style, with bold accents and funky shapes. From $150 for Gwen Stefani Collection and $195 for L.A.M.B., tura.com for stores

Hot CAUSE

Sport gear that supports a good cause with Generation Kind. The line of juniors tees (like Alessandra Ambrosio's adult tank) focuses on anti-bullying, with details about its partnering teen crisis center on the product and packaging to remind kids to be strong. With encouraging phrases such as Be Someone's Sunshine and Born To Be Nice, each top comes with a friendship bracelet and hotline info for those who need help. From $13, target.com

Hot TATTOO

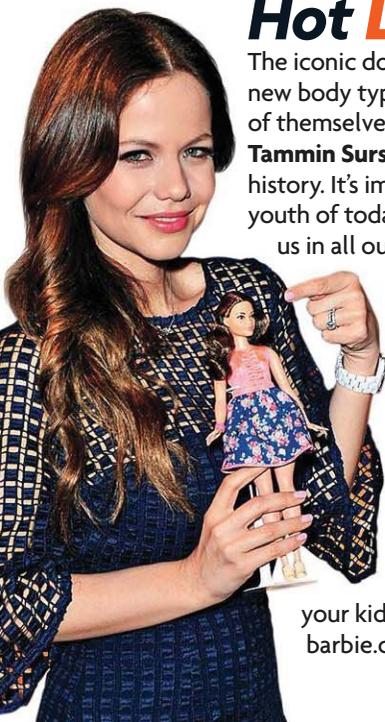

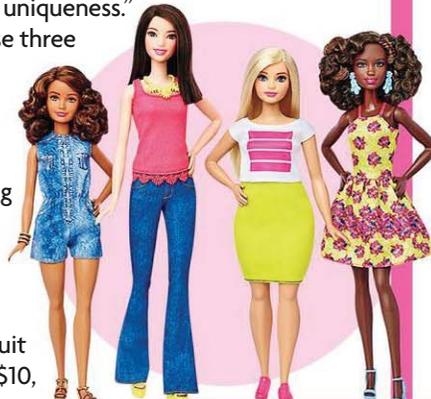

Make a permanent impression with temporary Flash Tattoos! Beloved by celebs including Beyoncé, the brand launched a DIY design feature where you can create your own metallic tats. Pick from the semicustom options (fill in with names and dates) or start from scratch with your own design. From $45 for 100 personalized and $150 for 300 fully custom, flashtat.com

Hot DOLL

The iconic doll finally got a makeover! With the launch of three new body types — curvy, petite and tall — girls can see versions of themselves in the latest Barbies. As Pretty Little Liars actress Tammin Sursok told Star, "This is a massive moment in Barbie history. It's important to instill a healthy body image for the youth of today. Now we have a range of dolls which represents us in all our diversity and uniqueness."

By adding these three figures to the collection of 23 Barbie Fashionista Dolls (featuring different skin, hair and eye colors), it's no lie that you'll find a doll to suit your kid's shape. From $10, barbie.com

Hot HOME

We're going gaga over this adorable nursery collection! Celeb stylists turned designers Emily Current and Merrit Elliott launched the Emily & Merrit for Pottery Barn Kids collection. The 80 pieces of furnishings and accessories include pillows, bedding and wall décor in chic black-and-white stripes or soft neutrals and pinks. We wouldn't blame you for wanting to redecorate even your own room after checking out the baby-friendly pieces. From $8, potterybarnkids.com ★
