

MEET THE GODPARENTS!

The Voice coaches have always been on each other's team. Shortly after Blake Shelton and Gwen Stefani went public with their romance last November, Adam Levine showed his support by posting a pic of the happy threesome. "Family. (Blake is the stepbrother)," he joked in the caption. So it's no surprise that the daddy-to-be has asked the duo to be godparents. "Blake actually got very emotional," says an insider. "He really wants children of his own one day, so having Adam ask him to be a godparent means the world." Blake, 39, is already teasing Adam by promising to teach the baby about 'real' music and not Maroon 5, while Gwen, 46, jokes about how hilarious it would be if Adam has a little girl. "Blake and Gwen are deeply touched by the honor because it shows the trust Adam and Behati have in them both," says the insider. "They can't wait to meet baby Levine!"

Adam promised Behati they would start trying right away, no questions asked," details the insider. "But he kept dragging his heels about having kids and always came up with some excuse to postpone it." Behati got more and more exasperated, and after months of bitter confrontations finally issued an ultimatum. "She put her foot down and threatened to see a divorce attorney. She said she wasn't waiting forever and if he didn't want a baby, she was out the door."

MIXED FEELINGS

In fact, Adam and Behati have had a rocky romance from the start. They began dating in June 2012, shortly after the rocker broke up with longtime girlfriend and Sports Illustrated swimsuit model Anne Vyalitsyna. "Behati knew about Adam's reputation for being a womanizer and told him straight up she wasn't interested in just being someone's arm candy, that she was a traditional girl who wanted to get married and have babies," the source says. "Adam was so impressed by her honesty and independence that he did whatever he could to win her over and show her he was a good guy at heart. He's never worked so hard to get a girl before!"

But the duo split in March 2013, after Behati got fed up with his compulsive flirting. The serial modelizer wasted no time hooking up with another SI stunner, Nina Agdal, but boomeranged back in July, when he surprised himself — and Behati — by popping the question.

"Behati said if Adam didn't want a baby, she was out the door!"

— a friend tells Star

The couple wed a year later in a romantic ceremony in Cabo San Lucas, Mexico, and sealed the deal in ink with matching ring-finger tattoos. "She makes me the best person I can be," Adam gushed shortly before the nuptials. However, they hadn't even celebrated their first anniversary when rumors started swirling last July that the "Sugar"

Trouble in paradise

Behati and Adam's honeymoon didn't last long. Just four months after tying the knot, there was a noticeable lack of PDA when the newlyweds attended a Lakers game in Los Angeles in November 2014.

Stamp of approval

"Blake and Gwen are especially thrilled about this honor, because it really does cement them as a couple," says a source.

singer had reverted to his playboy ways, going on frequent guys' nights out and hanging with — you guessed it — other models. But this time, the problem wasn't his roving eye. Doing double duty on The Voice and for Maroon 5, Adam was putting the brakes on baby and putting his career first. And as Star previously reported last November, Behati was deeply concerned about the mammoth Maroon 5 tour that would keep him on the road through October 2016. "Behati told Adam she was not putting off pregnancy anymore, tour or no tour."

GREAT EXPECTATIONS

Her divorce threats finally drove Adam to get his head straight. By December, the couple were back on the baby track and, as Star reported, visiting a fertility doctor in Los Angeles. Now that they're expecting, Behati is more than willing to put her modeling career on hold. "She fulfilled her dream by opening the Victoria's Secret Fashion Show the past two years," says the insider. "She's going to follow Adam from state to state for as long as possible, and then put all her time and energy into being a fantastic mother."

As for Adam, "he'll happily take a step back from the spotlight once the tour is over," the source adds. "He can't wait to be a dad and plans to take a few months off after the baby is born."

And what are they hoping for? "A baby boy," dishes the insider. "Of course they'll be ecstatic either way, but Behati would love to buy him little rocker clothes and Adam wants to teach him to throw a football." One thing's for sure, says the source: "That baby is going to be insanely good looking!" ★

Gwen Stefani

The "4 in the Morning" singer rocks two colorful watches from her line, Q&Q x Harajuku Lovers.

Make a difference with this charitable watch

RumbaTime Jane Give Directly Watch in Silver, $60, rumbatime.com

Check out multiple time zones at once

IceLink Bianca 6 Time Zone Small Case Watch, $995, store.icelink.co

Sport an elegant smartwatch

Vector Watch Luna Smartwatch, $399, vectorwatch.com

Time Out!

Don't let one more minute go by without checking out these watches and their stop-the-clock features.

Swap out the two-faced bezel for rose-gold or silver

Stella & Dot Icon Convertible Watch in Stone, $148, stelladot.com

Accessorize your Apple watch with textured straps

Ullu Apple Watch Strap — Ostrich, $249, ullushop.com

Engrave the inside of this vintage-inspired timepiece

Henry London Richmond Watch with Engraving, $200, henry-london.com

Double up on style with a strap that loops around your wrist

Swatch Fun In Pink, $60, store.swatch.com

